The entertainment given by the young people at Heathdale school house last Friday night was a decided success the young folks did splendid rendering of "My Brutes". Musical numbers by Messrs. Tooth, Curtis and Abbott.

About one mile or two north of the school house on Friday night occurred a collision between Jake Berry's and Walter Anderson's cars. In the impact the lights on both cars were broken to smithereens and the radiator on the Anderson car was broken. No very serious damage was done. The foregoing is another evidence that too close driving even stop, when not absolutely sure of your bearings, is really no waste of time, but would be both a saver of time, and expense too.

In an interview with the agent Mr. Whitlock, of the Canadian Northern Railway, the Advance was informed that the railway company will offer a service for Eastern Canada excursions this year that cannot be excelled by any other road. The people of Chinook and district are assured of an excellent trip over the road.

Even Berlin admits some losses so there must be a little truth in the stories.

DISTRESSING RHEUMATISM

How many people, crippled and lame from rheumatism, owe their condition to neglected or incorrect treatment?

It is the exact combination of the Purest Cod Liver Oil with glycerine and hypophosphites as contained in

Hid Under a Woman's Wig

A Conscientious Objector in England Was Wearing Feminine Dress

A detective's smart discovery of a conscientious objector dressed and acting as a woman in Britain was told at the magistrate recently. He went to a house where two persons, who claimed to be sisters, were living. Suspecting one, a sudden pull at the door revealed a male.

The wearer, Alfred Goodman Dunn 40 years old, admitted he was a conscientious objector, and that he had posed as a woman to evade military service. He and his companion, Little Flinders, were charged with failing to report to under the National registration act. They had come to Bristol from Merthyr. The case was adjourned.

The Man Worth While

The Only Time That This Hero Cried

"While there is none of the romance that the magazine writers and story spinners have woven around our war, there is no more to grab in the days of my probationary in the old hospital," writes a V.A.D. nurse, who before going overseas served for two years in one of the big Canadian city hospitals.

"Sister R.—who has charge of the next ward told us a touching story that she had all the elements of tragedy and romance in her life. She said that a young soldier in her ward suffered from a gaping wound in his side and yet never uttered a sound. He always slept. One day the Sister spoke to him: 'Do you ever have a good cry all to yourself when you are alone?' 'Eh, no,' she said, 'what'll be the use.' You keep saying that. And when his face suddenly altered he said:

"'Oh, but I did cry once. I'll tell you when. I got a letter from my old dad telling me to come home as soon as possible. I was so angry with him that I could never let me get away for anything as long as I lived. I cried then.'

"These are the little things that happen now and then and set you thinking. When I go off duty I am going to see that boy. He is worth while."

BEST FOOD

PALÉ FACIES Generally indicates a lack of Iron in the Blood Carter's Iron Pills Will help this condition

Worth Remembering

From President Wilson's Letter to the Pope

The object of this war is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the dominion of an irresponsible government which, having secretly planned to dominate the world, proceeded to violate the principles of justice and the sacred obligation of treaty, or the long-established practices and principles of international action and honor; which chose the redoubt of the bloodiest of battles, the field of carnage, the scene of the most ghastly and hideous destruction, the tortures could tell just how anaemic a patient had become, and with medicine make new blood the patient soon got well.

All the blood in the body is nourished and kept rich and red by the food taken daily, but when, for any reason, a person is run down, and becomes weak, it is the task of the food to keep the body in health, then a blood-making medicine is required.

In every attempt to save food materials—and such an attempt should be made in the preparation of every meal whether by the home or the restaurant—certain facts should be kept in mind: "Our problem is to feed our country this winter by sending them as much food as we can of the most concentrated nutritive value to be sent to our allies in France."

Not only should there be no waste, but careful thought should be given to the preparation of each meal to the end that the selection of foods shall conform to the needs of the great conflict. Important engagements of this war are to be fought in the Canadian kitchen.—Bramall Sun.

The Proven Asthma Remedy Since asthma existed there has been no lack of much heralded cures and nostrums. The ever-growing reputation of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has given it a place in the field of nostrums which other can match. It has been tested and by sensational methods, but has simply gone on effecting relief and making new converts.

Sheep Raising

The Scarcity of Sheep in Canada Should Be Remedied

In Manitoba sheep raising has become a craze. The minister of agriculture of that province is conferring with the Ontario minister of agriculture to see if he can get a supply of sheep for breeding purposes. First, it was thought there would be plenty to spare in Ontario; but it turns out that Ontario has hardly more than nine million sheep. In the United States the decline in the industry has been even greater than in Canada. Now that Canadian farmers are in the mood to go into the industry more largely, and to find the best source of supply would be Australia. True, there is a great lack of tonnage for Australian wheat. But the review of the rapidity with which sheep multiply, additional means might be taken to bring them from the country in which there is a superabundance to one in which they are at a premium.—Hamilton Spectator.

Time to Step Forward Hon. W. R. Bothwell, minister of agriculture, says the time has come for the dairymen of Saskatchewan to build a stall for themselves. For ten years they have been preparing for this step and now it is their duty to take it.

Settling the Land

Ambitious Plans of the Greater Winnipeg Water District

The Greater Winnipeg water district is planning a settlement about eighty miles from Winnipeg. The Dominion government gives the land settlers, and agricultural students pointed out that agriculture is not merely an occupation which some individuals follow for profit, but it is a great national interest, determining in a significant way the welfare of the nation, the opportunities and character of our population; hence the improving of agriculture affects the status of Canada, its outlook and destiny. It is evident that agriculture is a student of economic problems under the agricultural students pointed out that agriculture is not merely an occupation which some individuals follow for profit, but it is a great national interest, determining in a significant way the welfare of the nation, the opportunities and character of our population; hence the improving of agriculture affects the status of Canada, its outlook and destiny. both the soil and climatic conditions of the land are admirably suited for horse raising. An abundance of pasture and feed of every description suitable for horses can be grown and the cost of production is much lower. The winter will hold in various ways in starting them in the development of the land, while the agricultural department will give the best use of the land and instruction in various agricultural processes and methods. The agricultural college will furnish stock and seed at cost and will stand ready to extend credit. The provincial department of education is very sympathetic also, and it will be very helpful in organizing the school and making it contribute in many ways to the welfare of the community. The water district will build a model school and devote some 40 acres to a community estate, its lands to be used for the benefit of settlers to direct and help market the products, which will be carried by the railroad to the city. The city of Winnipeg will buy the wood cut by the settlers in clearing their farms.

The allies would be simple-minded tools if they should suspend for a single second their preparations for war. Germany's peace overtures are as deadly as poison gas. They are as naked as rascals that sell out their country.

It is estimated that Manitoba has 250,000 horses of which approximately 1,200 are stallions culled in the department of agriculture. A conservative estimate would place the total value of the horses of the province at $40,000,000.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

This synopsis of law, of an area of 18 years old, now having a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Applications appear for a quarter section to the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agent or for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Land Agency (but not Sub-Agent), or certain conditions.

Dominion Land Agent receives and calculates the area of the land in three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 60 acres, on certain conditions.

A habitable house is required, except where residence is performed in vicinity.

In case a homesteader in good standing makes pre-empt a quarter-section along his home-stead. Price $100 per acre.

Rules—Six months residence in each of six years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as the above requirements are met.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead rights may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $100 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $800.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

The Best Farm or Ranch Car

YOU would replace your "general utility" team with a powerful, sturdy, Ford car at once, we believe, if you but figured the matter out carefully.

The Ford is especially suited to western conditions and your needs. It is equal to rough roads, big loads and long distances. These are the very tests to which you will put your car.

A Ford will run your errands for repairs, grease, mail and countless other necessities quickly and cheaply. It will save you weeks of time and money. It will be one of your best investments. It will make prairie life more enjoyable. You need a car and need it badly. The Ford is the utility car for the Western Farmer.

MISCONCEPTIONS AS TO THE CAUSE AND AIMS OF THE WORLD WAR

UNITED STATES FIGHTING FOR SELF-PRESERVATION

Lord Northcliffe Says Many People are Deluded by Pro-German Propagandists Into Supposing That This is a Commercial War, But Points Out the Utter Fallacy of Such Reasoning

That the American people are not fighting to make the world safe for democracy, but to make it safe for their own commercial interests, is asserted by Lord Northcliffe, head of the British mission in the United States, in an article printed in the October issue of Current Opinion Magazine.

The article begins: "What Is America Fighting For?" says:

"If this country had meant to take up arms in defense of British or French interests, or in the interest of Belgium, or in order to spread democracy, it would have done so until April, 1917. If its aims had been commercial, it would have been in the war long ago. The motive which brought the United States in was not desire for gain, but Britain, was not desire for gain, was not an abstract fondness for democracy as opposed to autocratic government, and self-interest, self-preservation."

"The people of the British empire," he adds, "have been probably inclined to do the best they could to defend themselves against foes who are set upon crushing them out of existence, a design which nobody but a lunatic would conceive as imaginable possible or even conceivable. And, further, she went to war to defend herself against Russia, the truth being that she was used as a cat's-paw by the French and Prussian governments to conquer of markets. He did not seem to think that England should take so much trouble to conquer markets, seeing that she gave the whole world, including Germany, the benefit of access to them."

The German Reply

Is Merely an Effort to Save Hohenzollernism

No negotiation can be entered into with the present German government because it would not carry out any agreement not to its interest. If any German power can trust in a government that can be trusted, the world will listen to its proposals.

At present Germany proposes nothing except that the war be ended with a peace which Germany would be compelled to make, and which Germany would be compelled to accept.

"Here in the United States, I am told, and I have discovered it for myself, that there are deluded by pro-German and pro-German propagandists into supposing that this is a commercial war." It is not very easy to make out exactly what these people mean by this statement, but as far as I can learn, they suppose that the cause of the war was commercial rivalry, and that the combatants are each seeking to obtain control of the world.

Doubtless that the allies are at war for commercial reasons, Lord North-

THE PROPER WAY TO USE COPENHAGEN CHewing TOBACCO

Copenhagen Chewing Tobacco is entirely different from the ordinary "plug" or "fine cut".

It is made of the best, old, rich, high flavored tobacco.

It is strong, it will gratify, it imparts strength and flavor more freely and fully than tobacco in the usual form.

For this reason, Copenhagen is not chewed; but is placed in the mouth between the teeth, and the gum.

A small pinch is all that is necessary to thoroughly satisfy, and those who are using "Copenhagen" for the first time, should take care to use only a small pinch. Copenhagen is to be thought to have too much tobacco strength.

"It's the most economical chew."

Germans Have Evolved New Air Terror

Gotha Bombing Machine Constitutes Real Menace

The repeated attacks on London from the air and the increasing number of planes and bombs used with which these attacks are made by the enemy, are causing discussion as to whether the German designers are evolving a more powerful type of aerial vessel than the British. What is new, however, is that the British are now compelled to admit that in the flight over London and the eastern counties recently, is the question which is being asked on all sides.

When the Gotha bombers over London reached the English coast, the pride of England will be lowered?" This is the prophecy of the Lokal Anzeiger, the semi-official newspaper of Berlin. The latter paper once predicted that "with carefully planned ruthlessness it should not be difficult for our Us-bats to compel the entirety of our enemies to submit to the severity of our justice for no honorable person one that would establish the German empire in safety from allied intrigues and from the naval possibilities by England." It may be that the latest news of the enemy will be doomsday like the first, to bitter disappointment.

The characteristics of the new bombing biplane of the Germans, however, are to be ignored. The Gotha bombing machine is a biplane with a span of about 80 feet from tip to tip of the wings, and has a length of 40 feet from nose to tail. Its weight when full of machine gunners is 12 tons. The body, or fuselage, is similar to that of the ordinary tractor biplane, familiar to all, but instead of having an engine, there is a gunner, who is also operator of the bomb-dropping controls.

The forward gun commands an arc of rather more than 180 degrees, and is mounted vertically, so that it can fire anywhere inside a sky area greater than more than a hemisphere round the front of the machine.

The bombs, twelve in number, are carried under the pilot's compartment, which is between the upper and lower wings and immediately behind the forward gun. The bombs are dropped from the rear of the machine, the balance is not affected when the case is full, and extra bombs can be carried in the rear of the Germans interred and prisoners of war, whose fate is most tragic.

To supply all this to the Germans would in no way diminish the effects of the blockade, because the persons who would benefit would not heed the call of the invaders, for simple reason that they are receiving nothing from the invader.

One sees, therefore, that military necessity and the exigencies of the war demand a certain amount of ruthlessness, and with a little more good-will one could arrive at satisfactory results.

Well aft of the pilot, behind the wings, is a large cockpit, and a gun on the top of the fuselage which covers the whole after hemisphere of sky and rather more, so that any hostile machine gunner from another plane, from either side, is subject to the fire of both the forward and after guns.

Besides the top gun there is a third gun on the floor of the after cockpit, bring placed in the middle of the fuselage as described recently, and the fuselage is so arranged that in the event of an attack from the rear the forward gun can command a second attack from the rear, and so two guns can be brought to bear on the pursuer.

It is this multiplication of guns and gunners which makes a formation of Gotha as difficult to attack as any other aircraft.

It is the impossibility of several pursuers to get ahead of his fellows he is the target for the concentrated fire of several machines, and unless the Gotha is protected by a screen of several machines, and unless the gunners are able to get away from the pursuers carry two guns each firing forward, and at the same time each attack a second Gotha, then it is impossible for several pursuers to get out of sight.

If one gunner gets ahead of his fellows he is the target for the concentrated fire of several machines, and unless the gunners are able to get away from the pursuers carry two guns each firing forward, and at the same time each attack a second Gotha at the same time and so bring a superiority of guns to bear.

Despite this difficulty, however, British aviators have succeeded in making short work of the Gotha.

The farmers' vacation time is here—all farmers take a vacation—if any do not, they certainly should. Vacation time, of course, means a holiday and a change; a change of climate if possible; a change of surroundings, etc., etc.—a change from the general routine, which most at intervals become monotonous. Even a change of faces is sometimes anything but unwelcome.

Take a trip—somewhere—anywhere—and let us have the intimation to the nearest Canadian Northern agent—we'll do the rest and we'll do it right. We have them all—the Service—Equipment—Dining Car Service—Standard Sleeping Cars—Newest and Best of Tourist Cars and Day Couches, electric lighted with every latest improvement, all of which with the courteousness of attendants make up a service that Canadians are likely to mention when talking to outsiders in a boastful mood.

He shook her with savage fury. Suddenly he let her wrists fall. An extraordinary change came over his face.

"I know who you remind me of," he said. "I've always known it. She died. She was ten years ago in the Richmond Hospital—I'd think it was Kitty's face that was hidden behind those internal weals and scars that can't even through that thing you wear."

She said nothing, only stood with her head bent, looking downwards.

He went into the saloon-manger; there came back to her again.

"You can't see me to take that bottle from me," he said. "There's no excuse for me, for the bottle never had much attraction for me. But I've been internally baffled and beaten."

Suddenly he took hold of the half-open door and leant his forehead against it with an air of weariness and defeat.

"I am an old man, Katty," he said; she trembled as he used the name, but apparently he had used it unconsciously.

"Here am I, only wanting to do the straight thing. I want to marry him. Dolly to go away some place where the past won't follow me and begin a new life. And here in this infernal country we can't get married."

"Any one can have, told me any other person. That what comes of being ignorant. No matter how clever you are you never catch up on those who have the education. You won't be able to tell him at my wife's." Dolly's aunt the sort to drag about the world unmarried. There've been times, when the drink was out of me, when I could have had him if I'd been alone. I might have if it hadn't been for the other fellow, who has everything I haven't, damn him!"

Doubtless it was the drink in him spoke, but it was the truth. Kate nodded. Her eyes were wonderful.

"Here I am with my neck in the noose," he went on, lifting his head and staring at her, "while every day I've been thinking of getting out for someone, priest, or notary, or anyone that would marry us. I'll have to move on sites all—to where the laws are easier. This is too far from England for me. It's dangerous."

Suddenly a look of fear came into his eyes. He was staring through the half-glass door into the dark stillness of a garden outside, that coarse brandy plays on a man," he muttered. "You did well to take it away from me, my girl. Do you see how it sways up and down—the body of Michel Quenelle out there in the woodshed?"

She gazed in a fascinated horror the way he pointed. Something moved out there in the dark.

"It was only Margot, who did the poisoning to please her lover. Why should you or I see it? We never did Michel Quenelle any harm."

Her dry lips muttered a prayer. She moved nearer to him for companionship. There was something out there, something she believed was trying to snap, in a wind.

"It's the cursed brandy," Cooper said, giving himself a shake as a big dog might coming out of the water after that a fool I am! The life is calling on me. I'll see what it is, man or devil."

He went back to the saloon a man, took the lamp and went out to the darkness. An old saloon's crook hung from the rafter. Beyond that there was nothing, absolutely nothing.

CHAPTER XXII.
The Flight

The days passed, tense with expectation, but nothing happened. Cooper went on now, his schedule, then only when he had fallen. He rarely appeared before midday, and after a meal he would go back to his own room, where he would lie on his bed, his feet tucked close to his chin, his hands clasped under his chin, to his free to tuck a while.

The evidences of his drinking were in the pallor of his face, the nervous jerkiness of his speech, his morose and angry manner, his bloodshot eyes and trembling hand.

Two women watched him in these days with a growing terror. Kate Bartlett would look up and be aware of Margot's eyes, which were also on Cooper. Each was estimating the point at which he would become dangerous.

Dolly was kept out of it. He made no effort to keep her. There was time when it would almost seem that he must have forgotten her. She kept to her room when he was about the house, dressed as she was in Kate Bartlett's hands, and when she asked in tears when they were going to be set free, she was confronted by Kate's assurance that freedom would come today else tomorrow.

He had been accompanied with a strange tale. She had fled to the granary from the courtyard at the sound of Cooper's voice in the house coming her way. While she was

Food saving and substitution must be persistent and consistent to bring results.

A Facade for Murder

German diplomacy is used as the facade for murder. It seeks to persuade peoples whose rights Germany means to invade, whose citizens Germany means to kill, that it is their moral duty to submit to them, thus as it is Germany's inherent right to do them. But because there is suspicion in the German mind that "superior governments will not avert to the Hitlerites' schemes to sack, sandbag, these governments.—New York Tribune.

Quebec Men Use Woodcraft to Outwit Germans and Capture Prisoners

A Scout contingent and party of nine men of Quebec battalion gave an object lesson on the front, showing the value of careful scouting. The party went out into a haze lying in the hollow between the enemy line and ours, and at a point about 300 yards from our own trench discovered Germans on outpost duty under the shade of some trees.

The Quebecers stalked the party as carefully as if the enemy had been a dozen in the night, and when the party was within range, struck.

The Quebecers

The Squire's Sweetheart

BY
KATHARINE TYNAN

WARD, LOCK & CO. LIMITED
London, Manchester, and Toronto

She looked, she closed the door and stood still, her hand holding the door as though she would protect the secret it had hidden. To look at her, she might have been Bluebird's mate, discovering the dead woman lying in a room but the closest thing to an ordinary hanging cloths with shelves at one side. The light of day admitted to it revealed a number of garments hanging from pegs, all of them in tatters, some pretty things had been thrust into their shelves by a hasty or careless hand. A grey dust lay over everything.

She stared at the contents of the closet, then she saw the dead woman hanging there. A noise at the outer door interrupted her. She looked scared out of life. Hastily she locked the closet door, dropped the keys in her pocket and went to open the door to Dolly, who was rapping sharply.

The girl was trembling. She had a sudden fear that she might enter Cooper's room in the corridor while she waited at the door.

She sprang into Kate Bartlett's arms like a frightened doe, and the woman comforted her, feeling the tremor of fear against her side while she held the girl close.

"Oh, Kate," Dolly whispered. "I was so frightened when I could not be left you nor get in. If I was to be left you, I knew the mere terror would kill me."

"You shall not be left him, my pretty girl," the woman said, smoothly. "The car which had just so much of his life in it, shall not wait no longer. This very day we shall make our escape. I could never forgive myself if I had waited too long."

They went downstairs, talking in whispers, silent as they passed Cooper's door. The escape was a simple matter, so long as he did not appear. The hanging key of the gate was known to him. It was kept. If she would not give it up then force must be used. Kate Bartlett had no doubt of her own power to accomplish this. Her little heart beat hard. There was no one there. She glanced at the peg where Margot hung her cloak. It was empty. Margot was gone.

She sat down with a sudden sense of despair. Something fell from her hair. It was a lock, sick and dizzy. She had waited too long. It came over her that she had lost her moment. There was a movement in the room overhead, where the ceiling was cracked. Something fell to pieces. Was he coming down? She had waited too long. She listened with the ears of a hare. There was no further sound, except the heavy breathing of the two girls. She crept forward, steadily nearing the danger point. Who should know if not she?

She was a padding sound overhead, head as of stockinged feet. She flew upstairs and listened at the door of Cooper's room. Her hand went to something in his breast pocket. One bullet fell to the floor. One bullet for him, one for her, one for her child if that must be. If there was only that way she was prepared to take. She knew she could do since she had waited too long. Oh, Lord, she had waited too long.

Not a sound. He must have lain down again. While she had listened she had crept forward, drearily seeking one look in the direction of Dolly's room, the door of which she knew was locked and bolted till she gave the family signal which would wake her. She was silent, by this time it rattled ominously. The wind sighed outside, rose and fell, clapped its invisible wings and sank to quietness. There was going to be a storm.

She went on downstairs, something like hope stirring in her heart. Who could it be that knocked? Someone must have gained admittance. Per-have after all, it was not too late. She had not waited too long. If but the child were safe, she did not care what became of her. Lord, have mercy!

She opened the door, which flew back with a bang. The wind and rain came in her face. Outside stood Margot, carrying a lantern. She had come back again. The house outside was in the mud. So it was. The way was free. If only her child were here, and not upstairs where at any moment Cooper might make his appearance. She heard Margot with her eyes. What did the little mad creature want? How was she going to keep her quiet till they expected so that the man overhead should not hear her? What would he hear if there was a struggle?

An amazing thing happened. The deaf and dumb woman spoke.

"Is the young lady ready?" "I am not a widow." "I am not deaf and dumb. You will tell me that I am deaf and dumb. He said that I was to pretend that it was so. I had a place in England and I know the English. Bring her here, I will tell you. There is no time to explain, as you say."

Kate Bartlett fled upstairs, her heart thumping in her bosom, that she could hear nothing through the sounds of full sounds. She gave the five quick taps on the panel of the door.

Cannot Understand Why Canada in War

Lieut. O'Grady Tells of Conditions in German Prison Camps

Lieut. O'Grady, taken prisoner by the Germans at Ypres, April 15, 1915, was a series of interesting experiences in the Rotarian camp at the Fort Garry hotel. He spoke of his trip to prison camp with his wife, a widow. She had been captured with him. With her eyes. What did the little mad creature want? How was she going to keep her quiet till they expected so that the man overhead should not hear her? What would he hear if there was a struggle?

Live Simply

Everyone Should Talk, Preach and Act Economy

Courage and leadership should set us for an open spirit to live simply can each of us afford? That ought to be the goal of competition now. At the bottom of the scale it may mean one less meal or a last meal. It may mean top management anything from last year's limousine to next year's chateau. The amount of needless pending, the amount of possible waste, the amount of painless living, the amount of pleasure is that every American ought to talk, preach and act economy. Every community ought to get down to common-sense dressing and common-sense eating. The family most respected ought to be the family that makes the greatest sacrifice of extravagances and that succeeds in reducing its living expenses to the smallest possible amount. Then puts the greatest proportion of its savings into Liberty bonds.—New York Tribune.

Do not get into the habit of feeding your chicks the same food over and over and again. They need a variety, and it is well now and then to give them something new.

The Noble Foundation

Making Farming a Scientific Business Proposition

One of the most enterprising districts in Western Alberta is near Nobleton in South Alberta. Here there is a live bunch of farmers, led by C. S. Noble and others in making farming a scientific business proposition.

The Noble Foundation, this year, has nearly 10,000 acres in crop on its various farms. The big organization was more of a success this year than ever, and it is due to the wonderful organization. Mr. Noble has built up, and the local support given him by his whole force, office staff, foremen, workmen and all.

To give some idea of the enormous expense the Foundation is undergoing, the cost of feeding one horse for one year is $200.

There are 250 horses employed. The cost of feeding one horse is 50 cents a day, making an expense of $18,000 per year.

There are 150 men employed, with an actual cash outlay for food of 60 cents apiece per day, making a total of $18,000 per year. This also says the total cost for food per man per day is at least $1. The cost of feed is $8,000.

Carrier pigeons are doing their bit splendidly at the front, and have splendidly done their work, and latest thing in gas helmets. It is well known, of course, that both sides are using those birds, and consequently the greatest care is to be observed in handling and shooting them to appear on the scene. It is not unusual for our own birds to return from the other side of the enemy unless, possibly, in the case of dairy cows, but these must be in perfect working health.

Lesson Community And National Life

American School Children to Receive Instruction in Democracy

American school children will soon have put before them material for "education in democracy," at the request of President Wilson, through the co-operation of the food administrator and United States commissioner of education, P. E. Claxton.

A series of bulletins entitled "Lessons in Community and National Life" will be sent to pupils of all schools, calling attention to the necessity for conservation of food and other national resources. They will serve the educational purpose of making the people recognize their rights and obligations in the democracy in which they live.

The food administrator has addressed a letter to school authorities, outlining the plan as follows:

"To the superintendents and principals of the schools of the United States:

"In keeping with the plan outlined by the president, the United States food administrator will co-operate with the department of agriculture in issuing through the bureau of education a series of bulletins which will contain 'Lessons in Community and National Life.' These lessons will serve the very urgent immediate necessity of conserving food and all other resources of the nation. They will also serve the educational purpose of training pupils in the schools to recognize their rights and obligations in the co-operative society in which they live."

"I urge all school officers to promote and support this plan for the more definite and comprehensive teaching of democracy."

Prairie Live Stock Increasing

The live stock outlook in Western Canada is very bright and farmers are making every effort to get more extensively into live stock.

The principal handicaps are lack of buildings, fence and capital. But these are being overcome and these handicaps are being overcome. Our department of agriculture has already distributed eight cars of cattle to western this year. These animals are to be turned out on time.

"The high price of feed is having some effect, but there is a steady increase, and the desire to increase the numbers is universal." Hon. W. C. Sutherland.

After the War

Land Settlement and Agriculture Will Be Stimulated

In the post-bellum period Canada will need as much real production as it can manage. Farming ought to have a big future. There are only two ways of bringing up our output—to bring in trained farmers, or to educate green settlers. The release of our own large armies and immigration of British ex-soldiers will help us to rear men who might ought to be turned to agricultural account. To provide training facilities on inviting conditions and terms is to attract immigrants who are otherwise bound to drift about, settling in the cities and towns when and how they could. The great obstacle to land settlement is ignorance of farm conditions—for farming is a technical science. We must not fail in other occupations. By all means, the opening of the door to settlement through training and settling facilities, ought to be as wide as possible for returning and immigrating soldiers.

An Impudent Offer

Nominal independence, a powerless king sitting handcuffed and gagged by his countrymen, throne, German commercial controllers, Canadian corporation of the railroads and the ports a German army dominating the country and garrisoning its towns and fortresses. This is what Germany means when she speaks of peace, when she speaks of restoring Belgium. Chancellor Michaelis has the impudence to talk as though he had spoken of it already, to wonder at the reversal of the Belgian and French, to consider so haphazard an offer, and to pretend that nothing stands in the way of negotiation—Belgium being thus disposed of—except Alsace-Lorraine.—New York Times.

Miller's Worm Powders will drive worms from the system without injury to the child. The pedantic says "Take the worm, make them die stone worms can assimilate them and welcome them as speedy eaters of pain, because they promptly kill the worms that cause the pain." The worm of the child is relieved. With so sterling a remedy at hand no child should suffer an hour from worms.

China's Definition

To us the real interest in uncaring the Kaiser's speech is historical. History has the laugh on Wilhelm for the very claimants who were expected "to act and look as though Germans have allowed to seek assistance at 70,000 years. They did not wait a thousand years. Frightfulness has not prevented their entrance into the world war. China, where things are generally outside doors and wrong end to, to cherish the definition. "Frightfulness: That which does not frighten." And we may add that the definition has met with a cordial reception the world over—Chicago Tribune.

Interest in Sheep Raising

4,000 Applications for Sheep From Manitoba Farms

The announcement recently made by the minister of agriculture for the province of Manitoba that his department would expend $125,000 on the purchase of sheep in Ontario to be sold to Manitoba farmers at cost, has already resulted in 4,000 applications being received. The department of agriculture has now announced that the price will be limited to $125,000, but it is feared that in view of the number of applications received it will be impossible to procure sufficient sheep to supply the demand. The high price which has been obtained for sheep together with the low cost at which sheep can be reared in Western Canada, is inducing a considerable number of farmers to turn to the raising of sheep. Those who have already made a beginning in this line are making every effort to increase the size of their herds.

It Testifies for Itself—Dr. Thomas Electric Oil needs no testimonial of its powers, other than itself. Who ever tried it for coughs or colds, for rheumatism, sciatica, sprains or burns, for pains in the limbs or body, well know that the medicine proves itself and needs no guarantee. This shows why this oil is in general use.

The Terror of the Hun

When Death Is to Be Preferred to Slavery

A gaudy scene was witnessed at a railroad station on an old day when a mother bade farewell to her son, as he departed for a training camp. The poor woman was almost overcome with emotion. Her only boy was turning his back upon her. She felt that she would tell him good-bye forever, and she so stated to the many fellow who stood before her. "You will never come back," she replied. "Oh, my boy; you will come back to me if you go to France!"

The young fellow took his mother in his arms. He assured her that he would return. "We'll meet again," he said. "We'll meet again." After the fighting in France, I shall be letter off than you will be here in this country if Germany wins this war.

Fathers and fathers should read the words of this brave boy. They should have them impressed upon their minds. For not since the war started has any man uttered greater philosophy.

The young fellow took his mother in his arms. He assured her that he would return. "We'll meet again," he said. "We'll meet again." After the fighting in France, I shall be letter off than you will be here in this country if Germany wins this war.

Mr. A. A. Stephenson of Granum, and for some time a resident in this district, is renewing old acquaintances this week.

Xmas will be here before you know where you are. Look over Advance advertising columns so that you know where to get Xmas bargains.

Somers Bros., who have been farming near Chinook during the past Summer, leave this week for their home at Rockland, near Ottawa, for the Winter.

Will the village taxpayers please remember that taxes are due and should be paid at once. A penalty of 5 per cent will be added to all unpaid taxes after Dec. 31st. You may as well save that 5 per cent.

Chinook is being favored with a galaxy of political speakers. On Wednesday of this week we had the Hon. A. L. Sifton for the Union Government; next Wednesday at 2 p.m. will be Hon. A. G. McKay, Lieut. Reilly and J. A. McColl for the Liberal party and Geo. Paton at 7:30 p.m. the same day for the Socialists.

During the past month there has been considerable liquor shipped into Chinook, by individuals who have unfortunately consumed it not wisely but too well. It is the actions of a few indiscreet men that will bring the law into disrepute, and will cause the present regulations with regards to liquor to be changed.

Mr. J. E. Howard has severed his connection with the pool hall barber shop and has purchased the tonorial business formerly owned by W. Long, one door north of Woodruff's hardware store. Mr. Howard will be very pleased to see all his old customers, and also all new ones. Clean, quick and the best of service guaranteed.

It is hoped that the ratepayers of Chinook will take an interest in the nominations for members of the Village Council next Monday evening, at the Advance office. The past three years very few have taken any interest whatever. That should not be the case. The village needs the services of three good live men for 1918, and it is to be hoped they will be forthcoming.
